SPECIAL MASTER

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

On June 9, 2016, Plaintiffs filed a Motion for Sanctions Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1927 and the Court’s Inherent Authority (Section 1927 Motion), a supporting memorandum of points and authorities, and the supporting declaration of their counsel, S. Ron Alikani; however, the attachments referred to in the declaration were not filed. On the same date, Mr. Safarian filed an Objection to the Section 1927 Motion on the ground it was untimely. On June 10, 2016, Plaintiffs refiled Mr. Alikani’s declaration and also filed the attachments to the declaration.

On June 10, 2016, the Special Master issued an Order to Show Cause Why Plaintiffs' Section 1927 Motion Should Not Be Taken Off Calendar Due to its Untimeliness (OSC) and set a briefing schedule on the OSC. On June 17, 2016, Plaintiffs filed a Response to the OSC and the supporting declarations of Steven A. Skalet, S. Ron Alikani, and Jasmin Alford, a paralegal

1 in Mr. Skalet's law firm. On June 27, 2016, Mr. Safarian filed a Reply to Plaintiffs' Response
 2 and his own declaration. On June 28, 2016, Plaintiffs filed a Motion to Strike Portions of Mr.
 3 Safarian's Reply (Motion to Strike).

4 On July 8, 2016, the Special Master issued an Order: (1) granting Plaintiffs' Motion to 5 Strike, (2) finding Plaintiffs had shown excusable neglect for their tardy (by one day) filing of 6 the Section 1927 Motion and vacating the OSC, and (3) setting a briefing schedule on the 7 Section 1927 Motion. On July 22, 2016, Mr. Safarian filed his Opposition to the Section 1927
 8 Motion (Oppo.) and his own the declaration, with exhibits. On July 29, 2016, Plaintiffs filed a 9 Reply. On September 6, 2016, JAMS served the parties with the Special Master's tentative 10 ruling on Plaintiffs' Section 1927 Motion.

11 Oral argument was held telephonically before the Special Master on September 23,
 12 2016. Steven A. Skalet, Pia Winston, Raymond Fay, Nance Becker and S. Ron Alikani
 13 appeared on behalf of Plaintiffs and Harry A. Safarian appeared on behalf of himself.

16 Relevant Procedural History

17 On February 29, 2016, the Special Master issued an Order Granting Plaintiffs' Motion
 18 for Discovery Sanctions (Special Master Discovery Order), which ordered inter alia that 19 Defendant Obenstine and Harry Safarian, jointly and severally, shall pay Plaintiffs reasonable
 20 expenses and attorney fees in an amount to be determined. [Dkt. 422]

21 The Special Master found that grounds exist to award attorney fees against Defendant
 22 Obenstine, pursuant to Rule 37(c)(1)(A), for inter alia "willfully and in bad faith violat[ing]
 23 Rule 26(a) [Initial Disclosures] by not providing a 'description by category and location' of the 24 documents he possessed on the laptop and in one or two bankers' boxes"; "willfully and in bad
 25 faith violat[ing] Rule 26(e) by not supplementing his deficient Initial Disclosures";
 26 "intentionally ... not ... disclos[ing] he possessed Cosmopolitan-related documents, including 27 the emails from his Crestpar email account, in his Rule 26(a) Initial Disclosures"; and 28 "demonstrat[ing] a willful intention to conceal his possession of relevant documents" by failing

1 to supplement his responses to Sets One and Two of Plaintiffs' Requests for Production of 2 Documents after July 14, 2015, when the district court ruled that documents from Crestridge
3 Partners, Inc. were not privileged. Id. 15:15-20, 28-16:6.

4 The Special Master also determined that grounds exist to award attorney fees against 5 Mr. Safarian for violating Rule 26(g)(1), by certifying as complete and correct Defendant
6 Obenstine's deficient Rule 26(a) Initial Disclosures, and by failing to show that 'his violation of 7 Rule 26(g)(1) was substantially justified....' Id. at 23:21-27. Accordingly, the Special Master
8 ordered that Defendant Obenstine and Harry Safarian, jointly and severally, shall pay Plaintiffs 9 reasonable expenses and attorney fees, in an amount to be determined. Id. at 25:4-6.

10 On March 14, 2016, Plaintiffs filed an Objection to the Special Master Discovery Order
11 [Dkt. 432] and Defendant Obenstine filed his Objections to the Special Master Discovery Order.
12 [Dkt. 431]. On May 17, 2016, after considering the parties' objections, District Judge Fernando
13 M. Olguin adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendations set forth in the Special 14 Master Discovery Order and afforded Plaintiffs 14 days to file their motion for attorney fees and 15 costs. [Dkt. 467]. In adopting the Special Master Discovery Order, Judge Olguin specifically 16 found:

17 [W]hile Obenstine's counsel acknowledges that plaintiffs "raised questions" as to the 18 source of the 2009 Jafary emails, the fact remains that Obenstine's counsel did not make 19 transparent to plaintiffs' counsel the existence of the undisclosed documents. A party is 20 not required to divine an opposing counsel's murky statement; rather Obenstine and his 21 counsel had an obligation to give plaintiffs notice of the undisclosed documents in his 22 initial disclosures and produce the subject documents either in response to plaintiffs'
23 document requests or as supplemental responses to the document requests.

24
25 Id. at 6 (emphasis added).

26
27 On May 18, 2016, Judge Olguin denied without prejudice Plaintiffs' Ex Parte
28 Supplemental Application for Sanctions (Under Rule 16) Against Defendant Obenstine [Dkt.

1 450] and referred it to the Special Master for a decision or recommendation. [Dkt. 468].
 2 Additionally, Judge Olguin advised Plaintiffs that they “may, no later than 21 days from the 3 filing date of the Order,” file a motion with the Special Master as to whether Defendant
 4 Obenstine’s attorney, Harry Safarian, has “unreasonably and vexatiously” multiplied the 5 proceedings under 28 U.S.C. § 1927. Id. ¶¶ 3-4. On May 31, 2016, the Special Master issued an 6 Order Denying Plaintiffs’ Ex Parte Supplemental Application for Sanctions (Rule 16 Sanctions 7 Order) against Defendant Obenstine. [Dkt. 473]. Plaintiffs did not file any Objections to the Rule 16 Sanctions Order.

 9 II.

10 Plaintiffs’ Section 1927 Motion

11 Plaintiffs’ Section 1927 Motion seeks sanctions against Mr. Safarian “pursuant to 28
 12 U.S.C. § 1927 and the Court’s inherent authority to police the conduct of attorneys before it and 13 to ensure the orderly process of justice....” Motion at 2:7-10. Plaintiffs claim “[t]here is ample 14 evidence to show that attorney Harry Safarian, willfully and blatantly, has misled or attempted 15 to mislead the Court and the Plaintiffs, unreasonably and vexatiously multiplied the 16 proceedings, and conspired with his client to deprive the Plaintiffs of crucial documents in this case.” Id. at 2:1-5.

17
 18 Mr. Safarian objects that Plaintiffs’ Section 1927 Motion cannot properly raise a claim
 19 for sanctions based on the district court’s inherent authority, arguing that Judge Olguin’s Order
 20 of May 18, 2016, limited Plaintiffs to seeking sanctions under Section 1927. Oppo. at 5:19-26.
 21 Mr. Safarian is correct. Accordingly, the Special Master will not consider whether grounds 22 exist to sanction Mr. Safarian under the district court’s inherent authority.

 24 The Special Master notes that Plaintiffs’ Section 1927 Motion does not identify the 25 specific acts or omissions Plaintiffs claim constitute grounds to sanction Mr. Safarian. Rather, 26 Plaintiffs rely on their memorandum of points and authorities and the supporting declaration of 27 Mr. Alikani, particularly the attachments, to flesh out the grounds for their Section 1927
 Motion. Unfortunately, the nature of their claims is not always clear.

III. Discussion

The Legal Standard

To generally prevent Rambo-style litigation tactics in the federal courts, Rule 11 requires counsel to sign pleadings, motions or other documents and to certify “to the best of [the attorney’s] knowledge, information and belief, formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstance[,]” that the document inter alia is not being presented for any improper purpose. Fed.R.Civ.Pro. 11(a)-(b). Similarly, to assure counsel comply with their discovery obligations, Rule 26(g) requires counsel to sign all discovery requests and responses and to certify “to the best of [the attorney’s] knowledge, information and belief, formed after reasonable inquiry[,]” that the document inter alia is “complete and correct” and any request or objection is not interposed for any improper purpose, such as to harass. See, e.g., McLeod, Alexander, Powell & Apffel, P.C. v. Quarles, 894 F.2d 1482, 1486 (5th Cir. 1990) (“Counsel have an obligation, as officers of the court, to assist in the discovery process by making diligent, good-faith responses to legitimate discovery requests.”).

The Special Master Discovery Order addresses Mr. Safarian's failure to comply with Rule 26(g) regarding Defendant Obenstine's Initial Disclosures and sanctions him for his violations. Plaintiffs now seek to sanction Mr. Safarian again, this time pursuant to Section 1927 of Title 28 of the United States Code, which provides:

Any attorney ... admitted to conduct cases in any court of the United States ... who so multiplies the proceedings in any case unreasonably and vexatiously may be required by the court to satisfy personally the excess costs, expenses, and attorneys' fees reasonably incurred because of such conduct.

28 U.S.C. § 1927.

According to the Ninth Circuit, Section 1927 provides:

1 the mechanism for sanctioning conduct that occurs after commencing a case. It provides 2 sanctions for unreasonably and vexatiously multiplying proceedings and requires a 3 finding of bad faith.... We assess an attorney's bad faith under a subjective standard.
 4 Knowing or reckless conduct meets this standard.

5 MGIC Indem. Corp. v. Moore, 952 F.2d 1120, 1122 (9th Cir. 1991) (citations omitted); see also
 6 Pacific Harbor Capital, Inc. v. Carnival Air Lines, Inc., 210 F.3d 1112, 1118 (9th Cir. 2000)
 7 ("The imposition of sanctions under § 1927 requires a finding of bad faith."); but see Lahiri v.
 8 Universal Music and Video Distribution Corp., 606 F.3d 1216, 1218 (9th Cir. 2010)
 9 ("Recklessness suffices for § 1927 sanctions, but sanctions imposed under the district court's 10 inherent authority require a bad faith finding." (citations omitted)); Fink v. Gomez, 239 F.3d 11 989, 993 (9th Cir. 2001) ("[R]ecklessness suffices for § 1927, but bad faith is required for 12 sanctions under the court's inherent authority.").

13 Generally, Section 1927 is designed to address instances of abusive litigation tactics by 14 counsel that may not necessarily be related to the signing of any particular document or 15 discovery request or response. Nevertheless, discovery-related abuses may properly be 16 sanctioned under Section 1927. See, e.g., Guifu Li v. A Perfect Day Franchise, Inc., 281 F.R.D.
 17 373, 396 (N.D. Cal. 2012).

18 It is fair to say that the Ninth Circuit's opinions on Section 1927 – and whether sanctions
 19 under the statute require a showing of bad faith – are murky, as the Ninth Circuit 20 acknowledges:

22 To be sure, our [Section 1927] cases have been less than a model of clarity regarding 23 whether a finding of mere recklessness alone may suffice to impose sanctions for 24 attorneys' fees. For example, ... we held that § 1927 sanctions require a finding of 25 recklessness or bad faith.... ¶ However, we have also held that "section 1927 26 sanctions must be supported by a finding of bad faith," which "is present when an 27 attorney knowingly or recklessly raises a frivolous argument, or argues a meritorious
 28 claim for the purpose of harassing an opponent." Thus, "[f]or sanctions to apply, if a

1 filing is submitted recklessly, it must be frivolous, while if it is not frivolous, it must be 2 intended to harass. ...[R]eckless nonfrivolous filings, without more, may not be 3 sanctioned.” ...

5 B.K.B. v. Maui Police Dept., 276 F.3d 1091, 1107 (9th Cir. 2002) (citations omitted). “[W]e
6 conclude that the district court’s finding of recklessness plus knowledge was sufficient to justify 7 the imposition of § 1927 sanctions.” Id. (footnote omitted). It is clear, however, that negligence
8 is not sufficient to justify the imposition of sanctions under Section 1927. MGIC Indem. Corp., 9 952 F.2d at 1122.

10 Cases in which the Ninth Circuit has affirmed the district courts’ awards of sanctions 11 under Section 1927 are helpful for understanding the legal standard: In B.K.B., 276 F.3d at 12 1107, counsel were sanctioned for admitting evidence at trial, knowing the evidence was not 13 allowed under the rules of evidence and might cause a mistrial, which was tantamount to bad
14 faith; in Pacific Harbor Capital, Inc., 210 F.3d at 1118-1119, counsel were sanctioned for 15 advising the client that a TRO was not immediately effective, despite the district court’s
16 statements to the contrary; in Salstrom v. CitiCorp Credit Servs., Inc., 74 F.3d 183, 185 (9th 17 Cir. 1996), counsel were sanctioned based on the number and length of the pleadings filed, the 18 timing of many of the filings, and the substance of the claims asserted; and in Wages v. Internal 19 Revenue Serv., 915 F.2d 1230, 1235 (9th Cir. 1990), counsel were sanctioned for filing as an amended complaint the same complaint the district court found deficient.

20 The Evidence Produced

21 The Special Master will now consider whether Plaintiffs have shown by a 22 preponderance of the evidence that grounds exist to sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927, 23 based on the acts and omissions alleged by Plaintiffs.

25 1. Withholding Evidence:

26 a. Spangler Case.

27 Plaintiffs claim that Defendant Obenstine’s “initial disclosures and discovery responses
28 are devoid of any reference to the documents listed in the Spangler Complaint and the responses were never supplemented.” Memorandum of Points and Authorities (Memo.) at 9:13-15. Thus, Plaintiffs argue, “it must be presumed that when Mr. Safarian filed the Spangler case, he in fact had knowledge of documents and information that supported the claims he asserted”; otherwise, he would have violated his ethical responsibilities and the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure by filing a federal lawsuit without any documentary basis. Id. at 22-26, 10:16-19 (emphasis added). Additionally, Plaintiffs claim that Mr. Safarian undoubtedly falsely represented to the Special Master on February 6, 2016, that he did not have documents in the Spangler case. Declaration of S. Ron Alikani (Alikani Declaration (Decl.)) ¶ 6.

On the other hand, Mr. Safarian states:

I filed the [Spangler] case based upon information I received orally from my client, who had interviewed Daniel Park.... I was informed that Mr. Park conducted an investigation and had knowledge of facts in support of allegations supporting the Spangler action. This verbal evidence, combined with circumstantial evidence concerning the timing of construction concerning the development of the Cosmopolitan, justified the filing.

Declaration of Harry A. Safarian (Safarian Declaration (Decl.)) ¶ 3 (italics in original).

On August 26, 2013, Mr. Safarian signed and filed a federal court complaint in Spangler v. Nevada Property, et.al, which raised claims related to the Cosmopolitan development, Alikani Decl., ¶ 4, Exh. 2, and on January 6, 2014, he signed the Opposition to Defendant Tutor Perini Building Corporation’s motion to dismiss the Spangler complaint. Id., ¶ 7, Exh. 4. Apart from signing these documents, Plaintiffs have not produced a shred of evidence showing that Mr. Safarian knew or reasonably should have known that Defendant Obenstine possessed or had custody of any documents in the Spangler matter. Plaintiffs have not met their burden of proof; their claims are based on pure speculation. Thus, Plaintiffs have not shown that this claim is a ground to sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927.

b. Two Computers and Documents.

Plaintiffs claim that “[r]egardless of when Mr. Safarian had actual or constructive knowledge of the belatedly disclosed two computers and printed documents, … [h]e didn’t turn over the computer so the alleged problem could be fixed or the data extracted.” Memo. at 10:22-11:2 (emphasis added).

Initially, Plaintiffs have not shown that there was an outstanding request for production of documents or tangible things or request to inspect the laptop – or any other discovery request -- that required Defendant Obenstine to produce either the computers or the documents. Plaintiffs do not explain why Mr. Safarian, as Defendant Obenstine’s attorney, had an obligation separate and apart from Defendant Obenstine’s to produce evidence to them. Thus, Plaintiffs have not met their burden of proof and have not shown that this claim is a ground to sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927.

2. Committing Fraud on the Court:

a. Deletion of Emails.

Plaintiffs claim that Mr. Safarian misrepresented, in Defendant Obenstine's Opposition to Plaintiffs' Motion for Discovery Sanctions, that all pertinent emails on the Crestridge server had been deleted, whereas he was well-aware that was not true. Memo. at 12:1-20. Plaintiffs further assert that this "misrepresentation is significant because it shows [Mr. Safarian's] attempt to mask the untrue statements in Defendant's previous pleadings." Id. at 12:22-24.

To support these claims, Plaintiffs rely on the declaration of Mr. Alikani, who states that in his “review of Crestridge III product[ion] I have found the same emails that Mr. Obenstine and Safarian claimed to have been missing from Crestridge III production.... The Crestridge III production was forwarded to Plaintiffs and King & Spaulding Defendants by Mr. Safarian. ... I am certain that review of the file sen[t] to King & Spaulding Defendants will show the same emails in Crestridge III production.” Alikani Decl. ¶ 8 (emphasis added). On the other hand, Mr. Safarian states that these claims were part of Plaintiffs’ Motion for Discovery Sanctions previously addressed by the Special Master.

1 Assuming arguendo that this claim is true, it would not provide a ground to sanction Mr.
2 Safarian under Section 1927, as Plaintiffs have not shown how the misrepresentation, made
3 during the course of the Motion for Discovery Sanctions, unreasonably and vexatiously
4 multiplied the proceedings. Thus, Plaintiffs have not met their burden and have not shown that 5 this claim is a ground to sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927.

6 b. Laptop and Documents.

7 Plaintiffs claim that Mr. Safarian misled the Court by falsely representing that he 8 notified Plaintiffs of the existence of Defendant Obenstine's laptop and the information it
9 contained. Memo. at 13:13-14. On the other hand, Mr. Safarian claims that, as Judge Olguin
10 adopted the Special Master Discovery Order, he has already ruled on the issue of whether Mr.
11 Safarian could be sanctioned for failing to disclose the laptop and boxes of documents, and 12 Plaintiffs seek to "double dip" to get additional sanctions for the same conduct on which Mr.
13 Safarian has already been sanctioned. Oppo. at 7:10-15.

14 Mr. Safarian is correct. Both the Special Master and the District Court made extensive 15 findings regarding these factual matters, and with the District Court's order adopting the Special 16 Master Discovery Order, those findings are final or res judicata. [Dkt. 467] Thus, the Special 17 Master declines to consider this claim again.

18 Nevertheless, the Special Master cannot ignore Mr. Safarian's relentless repetition of 19 two-related arguments which have been previously rejected by the District Court: (i) he fully 20 disclosed the existence of the laptop and documents, and (ii) he fully disclosed the source of the 21 2009 Jafary emails. See, e.g., Oppo. at 1:-24-2:10, 3:19-25, 7:17-19, 7:24-8:6, 10:11-22 11:10,15:18-16:7; Safarian Decl. ¶ 4. When an attorney continues to make arguments the 23 district court has previously rejected, as Mr. Safarian does, he is acting in bad faith and can be 24 sanctioned under Section 1927. See, e.g., Lamboy-Ortiz v. Ortiz-Velez, 630 F.3d 228, 246 (1st
25 Cir. 2010) (Repeating arguments that have been ruled on and lost before the court constitutes 26 "unreasonably and vexatiously" multiplying the proceedings and is sanctionable under Section
27 1927.) It is indisputable that the District Court in adopting the Special Master Discovery Order 28 rejected the arguments Mr. Safarian continues to repeat.

1       Although Plaintiffs do not raise Mr. Safarian's repetition of arguments that have been
2 rejected previously by the District Court as a ground to sanction him (there is more than one
3 example), the Special Master takes this opportunity to remind Mr. Safarian that it would be a 4 ground for sanctions against him under Section 1927. As notice has not been given to Mr.
5 Safarian that sanctions might be imposed against him on this ground, see, e.g., Boston Safe
6 Deposit and Trust Co. v. Operadora Dulcinea, 73 F.3d 368, *2 (9th Cir. 1995) (unpublished 7 opinion) (citing Jones v. Pittsburgh Nat'l Corp., 899 F.2d 1350, 1357-58 (3d Cir. 1990) for the 8 proposition that “[p]rior to sanctioning an attorney, a court must provide the party to be 9 sanctioned with notice of an some opportunity to respond to the charges”), the Special Master
10 refrains from awarding monetary sanctions at this time for such conduct, but places Mr.
11 Safarian on notice for the future.

12                   3. Vexatious Multiplication of Proceedings and Dilatory Tactics:

13                   a. Response to Interrogatory No. 7, Special Interrogatories Set 1.

14       In November 2011, Plaintiffs propounded Interrogatory No. 7 to Defendant Obenstine, 15 asking:

16                   For each year during the time period January 1, 2007 to the present please state and 17 Identify:

18                   a. Where you voted in any state, federal or local elections, including the dates of such 19 elections.

20                   b. Where you were licensed a motor vehicle driver and if you changed locations, the 21 date of the change(s) and new location(s).

22                   c. Where any motor vehicles you owned or rented were registered, and if you changed 23 locations, the date of the change(s) and new location(s).

24                   d. Where you actually lived and maintained a residence, including the number of days
25 spent in each US state and foreign country during each calendar year.

26                   e. Each office where you practiced law and the number of days during each year you 27 practiced law in each identified office.

1 f. Any properties that you owned or rented in California, and the dates of such 2 ownership or rental.

3 g. Any corporations, partnerships, or businesses of any type of which you were an 4 officer, manager or partner and that were incorporated or owned property in California,
5 including the dates of your affiliation with such corporations, partnerships or other 6 businesses.

7 Alikani Decl. ¶ 12, Exh. 8.

9 On December 19, 2011, Mr. Safarian signed Defendant Obenstine's Response to 10 Interrogatory No. 7, stating:

11
12 Objection. This request goes beyond the jurisdictional discovery authorized by the 13 Court, which allowed plaintiff to conduct discovery only as to whether specific limited
14 jurisdiction – and not general jurisdiction exists. The request is overly broad, vague, 15 ambiguous, and not calculated to lead to discovery of admissible evidence. Also, the 16 request contains compound conjunctives and disjunctives in violation of FRCP.
17 Plaintiff's definition of "YOU" includes non-parties and entities not related to 18 Responding Party.

19 Id.; Safarian Decl. ¶ 8.

20 Plaintiffs claim that Defendant Obenstine's objections to the interrogatory were 21 frivolous and constitute grounds to sanction Mr. Safarian. They also claim that Defendant 22 Obenstine's "refusal to disclose his address forced the Plaintiffs to retain a private detective and 23 spend a considerable amount of time and expense to determine [his] historical residency, 24 including searching real estate and travel records." Memo. at 18:12-15. On the other hand, Mr.
25 Safarian argues that Defendant Obenstine's response was in conformity with District Judge
26 Gary A. Feess's order dated October 24, 2011. [Dkt. 46]. Safarian Decl. ¶¶ 7-8, Exh. D. Mr.
27 Safarian also argues that the Interrogatory No. 7 was objectionable as it improperly contained 28 seven separate subparts in violation of Rule 33(a). Oppo. at 17:16-25.

1       On October 24, 2011, Judge Feess denied without prejudice Defendant Obenstine's and 2 other defendants' motions to dismiss on jurisdictional grounds and authorized the parties to 3 conduct jurisdictional discovery. [Dkt. 46] In issuing the order, Judge Feess found that 4 "Plaintiff fails to establish that this Court can exercise general jurisdiction over [Defendant
5 Obenstine]"; however, "Plaintiff's showing is sufficient to entitle him to limited jurisdictional
6 discovery." [Dkt. 46 at 5-8].

8       Mr. Safarian's contention that Judge Feess's order did not authorize the questions
9 Plaintiff asks in Interrogatory No. 7 is specious. The purpose behind Judge Feess's order
10 authorizing jurisdictional discovery was to afford Plaintiff the opportunity to discover evidence
11 to support a defense against any renewed motion to dismiss based on lack of jurisdiction. Mr.
12 Safarian should reasonably have understood the purpose of Judge Feess's order; it was clear.
13 Thus, Mr. Safarian's imposition of an objection that the interrogatory exceeded the scope of 14 Judge Feess's order was not only frivolous, it was knowingly made in bad faith.

15       Rule 33(a) sets a presumptive limitation of 25 interrogatories and precludes separate 16 discrete subparts as a means of avoiding that presumption. See Advisory Committee Notes to 17 the 1993 Amendments to Rule 33(a) ("Each party is allowed to serve 25 interrogatories upon 18 any other party, but must secure leave of court (or a stipulation from the opposing party) to 19 serve a larger number. Parties cannot avoid this presumptive limitation through the devise of 20 joining as 'subparts' questions that seek information about discrete separate subject."). The fact 21 that an interrogatory contains discrete subparts is not objectionable unless the subparts increase 22 the number of interrogatories beyond the limitation of 25. The fact that Mr. Safarian did not 23 object to Interrogatory No. 7 on the ground it exceeded 25 interrogatories – but solely on the 24 ground it contained subparts – demonstrates that this ground for his objection also was 25 frivolous.

26       Having determined that the objections imposed by Mr. Safarian to Interrogatory No. 7
27 were frivolous, and the objection that the interrogatory went beyond the scope of Judge Feess's
28 order was made in bad faith, the Special Master further finds that Mr. Safarian's clear purpose

1 or intent behind objecting to Interrogatory No. 7 was to harass Plaintiff and to multiply the 2 proceedings by forcing Plaintiff to file a motion to compel or to use other means to ferret out the 3 information the interrogatory was designed to obtain.<sup>1</sup> Thus, Plaintiffs have shown that grounds
4 exist to sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927.

5 b. Renewed Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction.

6 Plaintiffs claim that Defendant Obenstine filed a frivolous renewed motion to dismiss 7 for lack of personal jurisdiction [Dkt. 138], which “resulted in extensive briefing on the part of 8 Plaintiffs” before it was dismissed without prejudice. Memo. at 16-19. They argue that the 9 frivolous nature of the motion to dismiss is demonstrated by Defendant Obenstine quickly
10 withdrawing his challenge to personal jurisdiction [Dkt. 201] after the District Court dismissed
11 the renewed motion to dismiss without prejudice [Dkt. 199]. Memo. at 19:11-13.

12 On the other hand, Mr. Safarian argues that the motion to dismiss was not filed in bad 13 faith in light of a declaration signed by Defendant Obenstine on August 24, 2011, stating that he 14 moved to Nevada in 2009 and continued to reside in Nevada in 2011. Oppo. at 19:8-26. He 15 further argues that the District Court’s denial without prejudice, rather than with prejudice, 16 shows the motion was not frivolous. Oppo. at 18:25-19:3. Lastly, Mr. Safarian explains that 17 Defendant Obenstine chose “to withdraw the challenge [to jurisdiction] and deal with the case 18 on its merits after it became clear its purpose (to save time and money litigating in a distant and 19 inconvenient forum) was defeated by the exhaustive costs of litigating the simple issue of 20 jurisdiction.” Safarian Decl. ¶ 2; Memo. at 20:4-12.

21 Judge Feess’s Order of October 24, 2011, allowed Defendant Obenstine and other 22 defendants, after the completion of jurisdictional discovery, “to … re-notice[] for hearing if 23 necessary” their motions to dismiss on jurisdictional grounds. [Dkt. 46] About two years later,
24 on September 19, 2013, Defendant Obenstine refiled his motion to dismiss on jurisdictional
25

26 <sup>1</sup> In determining that Mr. Safarian’s intent was to multiply the proceedings, the Special Master has not considered
27 Plaintiffs’ allegations that they were forced to hire a detective and to search public records to obtain the answers
28 sought by Interrogatory No. 7, as Plaintiffs have presented no supporting evidence; they have presented only argument.

1 grounds [Dkt. 138], and Judge Olguin denied the motion without prejudice on December 13,
2 2013. [Dkt. 199].

3 Plaintiffs have not shown that Defendant Obenstine's renewed jurisdictional motion to 4 dismiss was unreasonably and vexatiously filed to multiply the proceedings or that it was 5 frivolous. Initially, the refiling was authorized by Judge Feess when he ordered jurisdictional
6 discovery on October 24, 2011. Second, Judge Olguin denied the renewed jurisdictional motion
7 without prejudice; thus, he did not view the renewed motion as frivolous. It is as reasonable to 8 conclude that Defendant Obenstine's subsequent withdrawal of his objection to jurisdiction 9 supports a finding that he no longer wanted to waste resources litigating jurisdictional matters as 10 it is to conclude that by withdrawing the objection he implicitly admitted that the jurisdictional
11 motion to dismiss was frivolous. Finally, as the Court ruled on the renewed motion to dismiss 12 within three months of its filing, it cannot be said that its filing delayed the proceedings. For 13 all these reasons, Plaintiffs have not shown that this claim constitutes a ground to sanction Mr.
14 Safarian under Section 1927.

15 c. Motion to Quash Subpoenas to Third Parties.

16 On April 15, 2014, Defendant Obenstine filed a motion to quash third-party subpoenas
17 and/or for protection re Defendant Obenstine's deposition in Stringfellow et al v. Obenstine, a 18 fee dispute in Nevada arising from the Watt settlement. [Dkt. 242] Plaintiffs assert that Mr.
19 Safarian raised a frivolous argument contesting the relevancy of the deposition transcript in the 20 motion to quash, and that he made this argument without having read the deposition transcript.
21 Memo. at 20:1-21:10. They also complain that after Judge Woehrle denied the motion to quash 22 [Dkt. 253], Mr. Safarian continued to delay production of the deposition by claiming the 23 transcript needed to be redacted to protect financial information, although he still had not read 24 the transcript. Id.; Alikani Decl. ¶ 15, Exh. 11.

25 On the other hand, Mr. Safarian asserts that the motion to quash was "made to ensure 26 compliance" with a confidentiality provision in the settlement agreement resolving the 27 Stringfellow litigation between Mr. Obenstine and Messrs. Stringfellow and Carcolice. Oppo. at 28 20:21:23. He also asserts that his delay in producing the deposition was an attempt to comply

1 with Judge Woehrle's ruling that financial information in Crestridge documents be redacted to 2 protect private information. Safarian Decl. ¶ 9. Further, Mr. Safarian submits that within three 3 hours of receiving the deposition transcript, he withdrew any objection that it needed to be 4 redacted. Oppo. at at 22:1-9.

5 Mr. Safarian's relevancy objection to the subpoena was made without Mr. Safarian
6 having any reasonable basis for making the relevancy objection. In order to comply with Rule
7 11, as discussed above, Mr. Safarian had a duty to make an "inquiry reasonable under the 8 circumstance" before making the relevancy objection. This duty could have been met by 9 reading the transcript or it could have been met by other means, such as discussing the nature of 10 the deposition transcript with Mr. Obenstine. Mr. Safarian does not claim that he met his 11 obligations. Thus, the relevancy objection was frivolous.

12 Without addressing the frivolous nature of the relevancy objection, Mr. Safarian argues 13 that he reasonably filed the motion to quash in order to enforce the confidentiality provision in 14 the Stringfellow settlement agreement. The Special Master does not agree. Although an 15 argument for privacy of the deposition transcript could be made, it was not a meritorious
16 argument, as Judge Woerhle found:

17 The court finds that the subject matter of the litigation in the deposition at issue was 18 taken is substantially relevant to the claims in this case and that the privacy and 19 confidentiality interests asserted by Defendant are adequately addressed by the 20 protective order in place.

22 Dkt. 253.

24 The Special Master concludes that Mr. Safarian recklessly filed the motion to quash in 25 light of his knowledge that the relevancy objection was frivolous. Apart from this conclusion, 26 the Special Master separately finds that Mr. Safarian's clear purpose or intent behind filing the 27 motion to quash was to harass Plaintiff and to multiply the proceedings by forcing Plaintiff to 28 oppose the motion to quash or to use other means to ferret out the information in the deposition transcript. Thus, Plaintiffs have shown that this claim is a ground to sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927.

Assuming arguendo that Mr. Safarian's three hour delay in producing the transcript was without reasonable basis, as it appears to be, Plaintiffs have not shown how this brief delay multiplied the proceedings – despite Plaintiffs' counsel having to send several emails to Mr. Safarian. Thus, Plaintiffs have not shown that this is a separate ground to sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927.

d. The Anti-SLAPP Motion.

On September 19, 2013, when he refiled Defendant Obenstine's motion to dismiss on jurisdictional grounds [Dkt. 138], Mr. Safarian requested that the district court rule on an anti-SLAPP motion that had been pending and stayed for several years [Dkt. 29]. At the time he made this request, there were several discovery motions pending against Defendant Obenstine. Based on the newly reinstated anti-SLAPP motion, Mr. Safarian moved to stay discovery. [Dkt. 142]. On October 30, 2013, Judge Woehrle denied the motion to stay discovery, but ordered counsel to meet and confer on limitations to the discovery. [Dkt. 183] On December 19, 2013, Judge Olgui denied without prejudice the anti-SLAPP motion. [Dkt. 199]

Plaintiffs claim that the six-week period during which the anti-SLAPP motion was pending “was used to delay the scheduled deposition of Sunjay Varma and his production of documents.” Memo. at 21:11-20; Alikani Decl. ¶ 16, Exh. 12. On the other hand, Mr. Safarian argues that the literal language of California Civil Code section 425.16 (the anti-SLAPP statute) requires that discovery be stayed while an anti-SLAPP motion is pending. Oppo. at 23:2-12; Safarian Decl.¶ 10.

The Special Master finds that Plaintiffs have not met their burden to show that either Mr. Safarian's request for a ruling on the long-standing anti-SLAPP motion or his request to stay discovery while the anti-SLAPP motion was being considered unreasonably or vexatiously multiplied the proceedings. As discussed above, the anti-SLAPP motion was denied without prejudice, rather than with prejudice, demonstrating that Judge Olgui did not view it as

1 frivolous. Moreover, Plaintiffs have not shown that a six-week delay in taking Mr. Varma's
2 deposition resulted in the loss of any evidence or could be considered an undue delay. Thus,
3 Plaintiffs have not met their burden to show that this claim is a ground to sanction Mr. Safarian
4 under Section 1927.

5 e. Objection to Interrogatory No. 8, Set Two.

6 Plaintiffs propounded Interrogatory No. 8, Set 2, on Defendant Obenstine, asking:

8 Identify each and every case in which you have appeared, or applied to appear pro hac
9 vice in any court in the state of Nevada between January 1, 2005 and the present.

10 Alikani Decl. ¶ 17, Exh. 13. On September 15, 2013, Mr. Safarian signed Defendant
11 Obenstine's Response to Interrogatory No. 8, stating:

12
13 Objection. The request is overly broad, unduly burdensome, and is not calculated to 14 lead to discovery of admissible evidence. Furthermore, the request contains compound
15 conjunctive and disjunctives in violation of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

16

18
19 Plaintiffs claim that the relevancy objection Mr. Safarian imposed was frivolous and the 20 unduly burdensome objection he made was false as Defendant Obenstine had never appeared 21 pro hac vice in Nevada. Memo. at 21:21-22:8. On the other hand, Mr. Safarian argues that the 22 relevancy objection was properly made and although "Mr. Obenstine could have answered the 23 question without much difficulty, ... [he] exercised his right not to do so...." Oppo. at 23:16-24.

25 As an initial matter, Plaintiffs have not provided any evidence to support their 26 representation that Defendant Obenstine never appeared pro hac vice in Nevada; they present 27 merely argument. Nevertheless, Mr. Safarian appears to accept the representation and also 28 acknowledges that it would not have been a burden for Defendant Obenstine to respond to

1 Interrogatory No 8. Rather, he argues, Defendant Obenstine had a “right” to object to the 2 interrogatory. Oppo. at 23:16-24.

3 Not so. As discussed above, a party is supposed to respond to reasonable discovery
4 requests; there is no “right” not to do so. McLeod, 894 F.2d at 1486. And a lawyer advising a 5 party of his discovery obligations should reasonably know that a party must respond to 6 reasonable discovery requests. Interrogatory No. 8 is relevant to the litigation and it would not 7 have been a burden for Defendant Obenstine to respond to it. As such, it is clear that the 8 objections Mr. Safarian imposed were frivolous, unreasonable and vexatious, and Mr. Safarian
9 knowingly imposed such frivolous objections to Interrogatory No. 8 despite his discovery
10 obligations. Further, the Special Master also finds that the clear purpose or intent of Mr.
11 Safarian in imposing frivolous objections to Interrogatory No. 8 was to harass or annoy Plaintiff
12 and to multiply the proceedings by forcing Plaintiff to file a motion to compel or to use other 13 means to ferret out the information the interrogatory was designed to obtain. Thus, Plaintiffs 14 have shown that this claim constitutes a ground to sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927.

15 d. Opposition to Plaintiffs' Motion to Amend First Amended Complaint.

16 On July 16, 2015, Judge Olguin issued an order authorizing Plaintiff to file a stipulation 17 or motion to amend or add or change the class representative, provided it was filed no later than 18 August 31, 2015. [Dkt. 355]. Defendant Obenstine refused to stipulate to adding a new 19 plaintiff, and on August 31, 2015, Plaintiff filed a motion to amend the First Amended
20 Complaint to add an additional plaintiff. [Dkt. 347] On September 3, 2015, Defendant
21 Obenstine filed an opposition to the motion, arguing in part that Plaintiff “inexcusably delayed”
22 seeking to amend the complaint. [Dkt. 360]

23 Judge Olguin granted Plaintiff’s motion to file an amended complaint, noting Defendant
24 Obenstine’s contention of inexcusable delay (or laches, as Mr. Safarian now characterizes it)
25 was frivolous and that the proposed Second Amended Complaint is identical to the First 26 Amended Complaint, except for two paragraphs containing allegations regarding the new 27 plaintiff; thus, Defendant Obenstine would not be prejudiced by the filing of the Second
28 Amended Complaint. [Dkt. 372]

1 Plaintiffs claim Defendant Obenstine's frivolous opposition to the motion to amend 2 constitutes grounds to sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927. Memo. at 22:10-17. On the 3 other hand, Mr. Safarian argues that the untimeliness objection he raised addressed the fact that 4 Plaintiff knew, as early as 2013, that Mr. Estakhrian had a potential conflict of interest, but 5 delayed in adding a new plaintiff; not that the motion was untimely under Judge Olguin's order
6 dated July 16, 2015. Oppo. at 24:6-20. Additionally, Mr. Safarian claims that Plaintiffs have 7 not shown how the objection he raised, even if it were frivolous, delayed the proceedings.

9 Judge Olguin specifically found that Defendant Obenstine's argument of undue delay as 10 the basis for his opposition to Plaintiff's motion to amend the First Amended Complaint was 11 frivolous. The Special Master now finds that Mr. Safarian knowingly or recklessly raised the 12 frivolous argument in opposition to Plaintiff's motion to amend the First Amended Complaint.
13 At all times, Mr. Safarian was aware that Rule 15(a) provides for liberal amendment of the 14 pleadings; the First Amended Complaint and Second Amended Complaint are identical, except 15 for the two paragraphs alleging the new plaintiff; the Second Amended Complaint did not add
16 any new causes of action against Defendant Obenstine; and amending the First Amended 17 Complaint would not prejudice Defendant Obenstine.

18 Separately, the Special Master concludes that Mr. Safarian's purpose or intent in filing 19 the frivolous opposition to Plaintiff's motion to amend the First Amended Complaint was to 20 harass or annoy Plaintiff and to multiply the proceedings. Whether delay resulted is irrelevant 21 in light of Mr. Safarian's ill-will. Thus, Plaintiffs have shown that his claim is a ground to 22 sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927.

23 e. Objection to Special Master Hearing Motion for Sanctions.

24 Plaintiffs claim that Defendant Obenstine's objection to the Special Master hearing the 25 Motion for Discovery Sanctions is a ground to sanction Mr. Safarian. Memo. at 2:18-26. On 26 the other hand, Mr. Safarian argues that the objection to the Special Master was not ill-founded 27 and, in any event, did not multiply or delay the proceedings. Oppo. at 25:4-14.

2 Assuming arguendo that the objection Mr. Safarian made to the Special Master was 3 frivolous, as Judge Olguin essentially found, there is no evidence that the objection itself
4 unreasonably and vexatiously multiplied the proceedings. Thus, Plaintiffs have not shown that 5 this claim constitutes a ground to sanction Mr. Safarian under Section 1927.

7 For the reasons set forth above, the Special Master concludes that Plaintiffs have 8 established by a preponderance of the evidence four separate instances in which Mr. Safarian
9 “unreasonably and vexatiously multipl[ied] [the] proceedings” and demonstrated bad faith
10 within the meaning of Section 1927; thus, monetary sanctions will be awarded against Mr.
11 Safarian.

12 IV.
13 Relief

14 Section 1927 provides that an attorney who unreasonably and vexatiously multiples the 15 proceedings “may be required by the court to satisfy personally the excess costs, expenses, and 16 attorneys’ fees reasonably incurred because of such [sanctionable] conduct.” 28 U.S.C. § 1927.
17 “The use of the word ‘may’ – rather than ‘shall’ or ‘must’ -- confers substantial leeway on the 18 district court when imposing sanctions.” Haynes v. City and Cnty. of San Francisco, 688 F.3d 19 984, 987 (9th Cir. 2012). Accordingly, “a district court may impose an award of less than the 20 total excess costs, expenses and fees....” Id.

21 Requiring Plaintiffs to present evidence of “the excess costs, expenses, and attorneys’
22 fees” attendant to each of the four separate instances of sanctionable conduct by Mr. Safarian 23 would unduly complicate and multiply this proceeding. Thus, the Special Master has 24 determined that it is preferable to estimate the amount of excess attorney fees incurred by 25 Plaintiffs because of Mr. Safarian’s sanctionable conduct. Haynes, 688 F.3d at 987.

26 For the two instances of sanctionable conduct arising in the discovery context, the 27 Special Master sets the excess attorney fees for each instance at $7,500, which roughly 28 approximates the median amount of attorney fees awarded when a motion to compel is granted.

1 Generally, in the experience of the Special Master, such awards range between $5,000 and 2 $10,000. Accordingly, for these two discovery-related matters, the Special Master sets the total 3 amount of excess attorney fees at $15,000.

4 It is more difficult to gauge the excess attorney fees Plaintiffs have incurred as a result
5 of the other two other instances of sanctionable conduct by Mr. Safarian, i.e., his subjectively
6 ill-motivated filings of the motion to quash the third-party subpoenas to produce Mr.
7 Obenstine's deposition transcript in Stringfellow and the frivolous opposition to the motion to 8 amend the First Amended Complaint, both of which forced Plaintiff to spent time and money 9 preparing documents that were unnecessary and multiplied the proceedings. Accordingly, as to 10 these two separate instances, the Special Master sets the amount of excess attorney fees at 11 $10,000 per instance, for the total amount of $20,000. Adding the amounts together, the total 12 award of sanctions against Mr. Safarian shall be in the amount of $35,000.

13 In the event the District Court is of the opinion that Section 1927 requires the taking of 14 evidence to support the award of excess attorney fees resulting from Mr. Safarian's 15 sanctionable conduct, the Special Master is available to take additional evidence and to set the 16 amount of the excess attorney fees based on such evidence.

19 Order

20 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Plaintiffs' Section 1927 Motion to personally 21 sanction Mr. Safarian IS GRANTED, IN PART, AND DENIED, IN PART.
